International travellers visiting New Zealand will soon be required to obtain an Electronic Travel Authority (ETA), similar to the USA visa waiver system, which will be mandatory prior to entering the country. The New Zealand ETA will be necessary for visa-free entry to New Zealand as of 1 October 2019, with applications open from 1 July 2019. Australian citizens travelling to New Zealand on an Australian passport will be exempt from the ETA requirement. Most travellers applying for an ETA will also need to pay the Government's new International Visitor Conservation and Tourism Levy as part of the process, although that additional cost will be waived for Australian permanent residents.

Stay Healthy and Safe While Abroad with Travel Doctor - TMVC

Globetrotter is a proud partner of the Travel Doctor-TMVC, a renowned leader in travel medicine since 1987. Your workforce is your greatest asset and keeping employees happy and healthy is key to productivity. In today's global economy, business people are travelling further and at shorter notice to more isolated areas than ever before. Consequently, the threat posed by illness and injury to successful business outcomes has intensified. Each year Australian businesses absorb over $7 Billion in indirect costs associated with absenteeism due to poor health (*Medibank Private 2008: The cost of physical inactivity). Failure to properly manage the health risks of travelling employees can be costly. Travel Doctor-TMVC lives and breathes travel medicine advice and will provide a comprehensive plan to keep your employees healthy and safe while abroad. This may include pre-deployment medicals, travel management of chronic disease, complex conditions, vaccination requirements, medical kits and much more.

Travel Doctor-TMVC offers complete corporate travel health services including:

- Pre-travel health preparation
- Pre-deployment medical assessments
- Pre-departure health and safety briefings
- Vaccinations
