Effective immediately, Virgin Australia will be aligning with other domestic carriers in refocussing on cabin baggage limits.

Passengers travelling with Virgin Australia can now expect to have their cabin baggage weighed at various points in their journey, including at check-in and at the boarding gate. If baggage is heavier than the 7kg limit, their bag will need to be checked in and carried in the cargo hold.

The US Government has announced it will no longer process applications for its Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) in real-time, meaning passengers can no longer obtain ESTA's at the airport. ESTA applications must be lodged at least 72 hours before travelling to the United States. Arriving at the airport without a previously approved ESTA will likely result in being denied boarding.
